"guinea."
To-day, however, the toughs that make the place their stamping ground, declared with unanimous vehemence that no one raised a hand against Carraro till be had stabbed Allen with the ice pick, which they allege that he drew from his clothing.

ALLEN'S RECORD FOR COURAGE. Allen's record for courage.

Allen never bore the record of a quarrelsome man, but he was siwhys fearless and had some redeeming qualities, once, when an old mowan was knocked down by a Broadway stage, and discovered, after being piezed up, that she had lest $22, her husbands wages, Allen at once counted out that sum from his own pocket into her hand.

When John Stanford had been knocked insequible by a stong bottle in Louis French's

Wooster street saloon, and a tough garg were about to jump on him and beat his life out, little, wearen Inced "The" Allen welked boldly in and thrashed two or three of them, driving them all away and saving Stanford's 150

"Allen said: 'No, you can't come in. I wouldn't play with you."
"I'm as good as you are.' I replied, 'and I think you might let me have a seat in the came." I don't want any of your gab,' Allen said, "I know you're a tough man to deal with."
I answered, and turned away.

"I went out, drank a couple of schooners of beer and bought a sandwich. I stayed out about fireen minutes and walked into the office again, eating the sandwich. I stayed looking at the game and did not say a word to any one.

case of Karl Gross, whose lifeless body was found in the woods near Maspeth, L. L.

Both injuries may have been inflicted by a biunt instrument, or possibly were caused by a fail.

The discovery of Paris green between the cicthing and the fiesh only increased the mystery. One theory is that Gross's murderers smeared the poison over hit body in order to make it appear that he committed suicide. Dr. Judson, however, who conducted the autopsy, states positively that there were no traces of mineral poison in there were no traces of mineral poison in The man about 5 feet a tickies in height, and weights about 100 pounds.

At Wargner's saloon all knowledge of Keller is distained. It is said there that he was only a casual customer.

Indertaker Ruoff, who had charge of Gross's body, believes that the man was murdered, and his body placed where it was found after he was killed. Then his niayers scattered Paris green about to lead to the supposition that Gross committed suicide.

"My opinion," said Mr. Ruoff, "Is that he was first stunned and then a knife was used on him."
